

HermanMiller Imagine Panel System

The newly refined Imagine Panel System was designed as an essential tool for the modern workforce. By arming organisations with the ability to choose how they use Imagine Panel System, this divider provides more support than ever for people to work any way they want to.

Imagine Panel System

The future of work is a distributed one. Herman Miller's research shows that hybrid strategies are gaining the most traction across organisations globally, and this is due to their ability to foster inclusivity and equity of experience for remote and office workers alike.*

To stay relevant in this hybrid reality, the office must become an 'on-demand destination.' To last the distance, the office must support all the activities people engage in that space – whether that's collaboration, forming social and cultural connections, or focus work away from distractions.

What's required is a strategic investment in equipment that underpins the workspace, facilitating inevitable change. Namely, furniture that facilitates the specific needs and activities of organisations, and the people working there.

*In 2021, over the course of 160 interviews with leaders from a range of industries, Herman Miller's Global Research and Insights Team made some interesting findings about post-pandemic workplace strategy.

Build it Your Way

Configurable in the planning stages, Imagine Panel System gives you freedom when it comes to designing office layouts, making it a vital component of the optimised office. At the outset, you choose where the panels go, based on the needs of your business.

Work with Imagine Panel System's 60mm-thick dividers for a robust aesthetic, or use the new 30-mm connection panels for a lightweight look that offers solid support. Use two-way, three-way and four-way posts for rectangular, grid or cluster configurations; add side panels for extra privacy ... the choice is yours.

Create the Right Setting for Your Business Needs

Imagine Panel System acts as a natural space divider, readily delineating different zones for a range of workplace activities. Use it to create embracing settings that bring people together; or to create space that facilitates privacy and confidential conversations; or to set the scene for focus work and research.

Customise Your Workspace

Bringing a range of options to the table, Imagine Panel System can be configured when planning to suit any kind of office – from call centre, financial sector and pharmaceutical to R&D. The divider is available in different sizes, and thickness options. Plus it comes in a host of colours and finishes, enabling you to personalise your look.

Constant Iteration

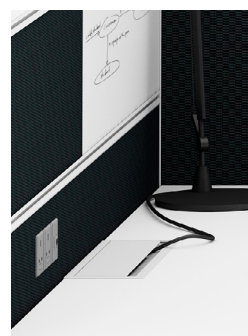

At Herman Miller, designing products that improve people's lives is our reason for being. It's why we're committed to making our products the best they can be, and it's why we'll never settle for 'good enough.'

Honed and enhanced for the third time, Imagine Panel System is a prime example of our dedication to creating the best – so that you can, in turn, do your best. We have improved on Panel System's posts, panels and connectors for more support and greater freedom when it comes to customisation.

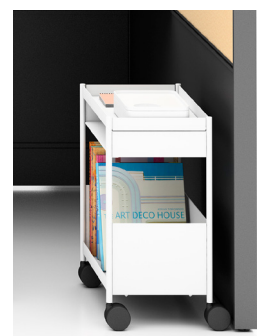

Surface Appeal

Imagine Panel System's configurable panels give you the freedom to optimise your workspace, without the need for walls or disruptions to ceiling plans and lighting distribution. Its panels deliver a lightweight look that's streamlined and perfect for the modern office.

Select Panel System's standard 60mm thickness, which comes with built-in cable management, keeps wires out of sight while giving you ready access to the power you need in your workspace. Or choose the ultra-thin 30mm version for a light and contemporary aesthetic.
